

Cardiorespiratory Interactions: Rhythms for Life

Maja Elstad

Division of Physiology, Faculty of Medicine, University of Oslo, Norway

My talk will be about human cardiorespiratory interactions, why the physiological and clinical interest is in both the mechanical and neural part of interactions, and how my group use mathematical analysis to investigate interactions. I will show examples of time and frequency domain analysis.